About the Seminar

Conflict and violence occur in almost all parts of the globe. Manipur is the most conflict- and violence-prone state in North-East India. The main causes of conflict and violence are social, political, and economic conflicts. A deep understanding and unfolding of the crises will enable us to resolve them, leading to peaceful existence and harmonization in the state. Adopting the “reaching out” model by the stakeholders is the need of the hour.

The seminar focuses on the understanding and perception milieu of contemporary issues and their related conflicts, violence, and unrest in the state. The seminar also unfolds how conflict, violence, and unrest affect socio-economic conditions. The aim and objectives of the seminar is to find a suitable approach to successful management of crises. Extrapolate examples from other areas where harmony exists and has been successfully overcome. Lastly, to recommend solutions or alternatives for peaceful coexistence and harmonization.
